ABOUT JESSICA OLLENBURG

Jessica Ollenburg collaborates with business owners and top executives for powerful business results. A triple-certified and award-winning executive, influencer, author, inventor and educator; she delivers extraordinary knowledge base and spectacular results via holistic blend of employment law, organizational development, fiscal prudence, infrastructure optimization and C-suite acumen.

Jessica offers 35+ years organizational development, esteemed professorship, extraordinary legal knowledge and entrepreneurial business leadership. A founding inventor of today's best practices, she is recognized by the U.S Patent and Trademark Office for multiple professional inventions enjoyed universally today. An internationally triple-certified educator-author-consultant, Ms. Ollenburg travels internationally presenting education for employers with operations in more than 100 countries. Jessica is called upon regularly by television, radio, print/digital media, academia and leadership forums to discuss new findings and future forecasts. Having accepted worthy challenge, Jess stepped in as CEO and drove a heavily-leveraged certified Disadvantaged Business Enterprise (HRS | Human Resource Services, Inc.) to power forward and surpass $50 million in aggregate worldwide sales, 35 years of high-impact award-winning success, exceeding 1500 field employees. Jessica advises "We are extremely proud of the HRS legacy and continued impact to business, workplace, community and charitable landscape which will live on indefinitely thanks to our historical team, clients and partners. So many distinguished HRS alumni continue on with brilliant contributions and dedicated work in the professional community at large. Our support bricks shall remain in the structure of some of the greatest nationwide children's organizations. We pioneered work-life balance while ensuring no one outpaced us with work outcomes. Our academic, professional and visionary impact shall continue, and we remain proud." Having impacted hundreds of thousands of workplace lives and executives, Ms. Ollenburg works with today's business owners and C-suite as a passionate practitioner in consulting, operations and academic deliveries.

With MBA/JD/industrial psychology studies from Marquette University, Jessica has earned a wealth of client recognition from small, mid-sized and Fortune-rated firms, and receives significant media attention for expertise, tangible success and innovation. Spring-boarding from decades of successful corporate entrepreneurship simultaneous to extraordinary client caseload outcomes, Jessica advises corporate executives and instructs at graduate and professional certification levels, serving as guest professor to top-ranked programs to include Loyola, Marquette and UNC - Chapel Hill universities plus the University of Wisconsin and the University of San Diego. As an extraordinary legal expert, Jess is regularly called upon by fellow legal professionals and courts as expert witness, and she delivers an unblemished record of protecting client employers in affirmative defense to reasonable care.

Ms. Ollenburg has contributed 25+ years' board and council service to private sector, public policy and charitable initiatives nationwide. She collaborates with and advocates to local, state and U.S. elected officials. An inspired philanthropist, she has earned the "Distinguished Service Award" and has chaired a wealth of highly successful charitable initiatives. With daily ongoing research, Jessica's certifications include the Institute of Management Consultants (IMC) and the National Bureau of Certified Consultants. Jess has been called upon by the IMC and SHRM to preside on certification panels, establish nationwide professional standards and identify/close gaps. A 20-year esteemed facilitator/trainer and member to CEO roundtables, Ollenburg regularly designs, builds and administers leadership, best practices and organizational communications workshops.
